Game design document

Game purpose:

Portfolio piece.

Game Identity / Mantra:

Its 2d pixelized game about differences between sea-creatures and earth-creatures who can't find solutions to their problems, the main issue is to find harmony between each other. For example, sea-creatures attack earth-creatures whenever they are nearby the water, however they do it due to earth-creatures polluting water in the first place.

Design Pillars:

Atmospheric delivery. Puzzle-solving. Narrative-driven choices.

Core loop:

Walk -> Run -> Interact -> Walk

Genre/Story/Mechanics Summary:

During the battles, you have multiple choices of escaping it through talking or escaping. You still have an option to fight them to defeat the enemy. However your actions will influence narratively on sea- and earth-creatures' relationship.

Features:

The background and music of battles differs depending on location.

MVP requirements:

Making things interactive in game, having inventory that can store things or use them in certain places. The battle mechanics, such as using a weapon, talking with the enemy and running away options.

Interface:

WASD or Up/Down/Left/Right Arrows – Walking/Pick the item from the list
Shift + WASD – Running
X or Space – Interact with environment/Attack during battle
R – Inventory
Q – Hints on missions

Art Style:

Artstyle is fully 2D pixelized. The main character is a human, so the player can sympotpize with them easily, while earth-creatures and sea-creatures are fantasy races.

Depending on locations, the aesthetics should be different. For example, on earth, when the player talks to others, it is more sunny and bright colors. While the player is in sea-creatures inhabitation, it is darker colors and barely has any lights.
